Assistant Headteacher Update

Last week, after two years of parents' evenings over Zoom, it was lovely to see you all in person coming into school to meet your child's teacher. For some of you, it was the first time you had actually been into school and it was wonderful to see your reactions first hand when you saw how much the environment has changed.

It has been a great start to this half term. We have come back refreshed and ready to begin our next unit of work. In writing, we have been looking at some of Roald Dahl's characters from a variety of his stories. We initially focused on Mr Twit and his hideous appearance and then moved on to his vile personality. We collaboratively generated some fantastic vocabulary which we applied in our character descriptions. The following week, we analysed Miss Trunchbull, who we felt had a similarly horrid personality. We discussed her physical appearance and characteristics and the manner in which she treats innocent, young children. To fully immerse ourselves into this topic, we arranged a visit from Miss Trunchbull. We were astounded by her dislike of children and wondered why she was a Headteacher at all! Thankfully, Miss Trunchbull allowed the children to ask her some questions, which meant that they were able to gain a deeper understanding of her character and apply this in their writing. Next week, we are going to create our own 'Twit' child who will be just as mischievous and horrid as the characters we have already looked at. Do ask your children to tell you more about this.

We are continuing with the theme 'The Stone Age' in our History and Geography lessons and have begun to discuss why early settlers chose the Peterborough area to make their home. We are extremely fortunate in our geographical location with regards to the Stone Age, as there is an abundance of history right here in Peterborough that we can draw on in our lessons. We are looking forward to our upcoming trip to Flag Fen on Wednesday, 7th December, where we will be able to see some of the artefacts that we have been learning about in our lessons, which have been unearthed in this area.

Next week we will begin our Design Technology lessons. In this unit, we will be focusing on food packaging. In order to help prepare the children, please encourage your child to look closer at packaging, particularly at the information which is provided on the packet. This may include the ingredients, the nutritional information and serving suggestions. They may also want to look at the colours and fonts which have been used on the packaging and finally the material that has been used to make it. We look forward to learning more about the marketing strategies which companies use to encourage customers to buy their products in coming lessons and we will finish the unit by making our own packaging for a cereal of our choice.

We would also like to thank you for your continued support as we have once again raised money for the Royal British Legion through the Poppy Appeal. This week we have also taken the opportunity to remind everyone to reach out and show each other the support we need during anti-bullying week. We have, amongst other things, worn odd socks to celebrate what makes us all unique. Finally, thank you to everyone who helped raise a fantastic amount of money today for Children in Need. It was a delight seeing so many of the children in their bright clothes or Pudsey themed items, walking around the school. We should have worn our sunglasses!

What Parents & Carers Need to Know about HOW TO COMBAT ONLINE BULLYING

Defined as "ongoing hurtful behaviour towards someone online", cyber-bullying makes its victims feel upset, uncomfortable and unsafe. In the digital world, it has numerous forms – such as hurtful comments on a person's posts or profile; deliberately leaving them out of group chats; sharing embarrassing images or videos of someone; or spreading gossip about them. Cyber-bullying can severely impact a young person's mental health – so, in support of Anti-Bullying Week, we've provided a list of tips to help trusted adults know what to look for and how to respond to it.

1. GET CONNECTED

Playing online games together with your child or connecting with them on social media (providing they're old enough) is not only fun but also an excellent way of establishing some common ground to discuss things you've both seen or done online – as well as keeping an eye on who your child is communicating with in the digital world.

2. KEEP TALKING

Regular chats with young people about their online lives are good practice in general, but they can also be an excellent refresher to help prevent cyber-bullying situations. Topics you might want to revisit include why it's important to only connect online with people we know and trust, and why passwords should always remain secret (even from our best friends).

3. STAY VIGILANT

Observe your child while they're using technology and just after they've used it. Are they acting normally, or out of character? Possible signs of a problem may include seeming quiet or withdrawn, jumpy or anxious, angry or repeatedly checking their phone. When you feel it's the right time, you may want to check in with them to see if everything is OK.

4. MAKE YOURSELF AVAILABLE

If an online bullying incident does occur, it may take a while before your child is ready to open up about what happened. Just gently remind them that they can always come to you with any problems – and that they won't be in trouble. You might also suggest a trusted family member they could turn to, in case they feel too embarrassed to tell you directly.

5. BE PREPARED TO LISTEN

When conversations about online bullying do take place, they're likely to be difficult, emotional and upsetting for both you and your child. Actively listen to your child while they're bringing you up to speed, and try not to show any judgement or criticism – even if they haven't dealt with the situation in exactly the way you would have hoped.

FURTHER SUPPORT AND ADVICE

If you or your child need additional help with an online bullying issue, here are some specialist organisations that you could reach out to.

Childline: talk to a trained counsellor on 0800 1111 or online at www.childline.org.uk/get-support/

National Bullying Helpline: counsellors are available on 0845 225 5787 or by visiting www.nationalbullyinghelpline.co.uk/cyberbullying.html

The NSPCC: the children's charity has a guide to the signs of bullying at www.nspcc.org.uk/what-is-child-abuse/types-of-abuse/bullying-and-cyberbullying/ and can be reached on 0800 800 5000

6. EMPOWER YOUR CHILD

Depending on their age, your child might not want a parent 'fighting their battles for them'. In that case, talk through their options with them (blocking the perpetrator, deleting the app and so on). By allowing your child to choose the path they take, you're putting them in control but are also demonstrating that you're there to support them along the way.

7. REPORT BULLIES ONLINE

Cyber-bullying often takes place through a particular app, social media platform or online game. If this is happening to your child, encourage them to report the offender to the app or game in question – ideally with screenshots to support their complaint. Most games and apps have reporting tools specifically to stamp out abusive behaviour and protect users.

8. ENCOURAGE EMPATHY

Protecting themselves online is the priority, of course, but young people should also feel empowered to help if they witness other people falling victim to cyberbullying. Even if they don't feel confident enough to call someone out on their abusive behaviour online, they can still confidentially report that person to the app or game where the bullying occurred.

9. SEEK EXPERT ADVICE

Victims of online bullying frequently experience feelings of isolation and anxiety, a loss of self-esteem and potentially even thoughts of self-harm or suicide. If you think that an incident of cyber-bullying has affected your child's mental wellbeing, then seek psychological support for them. There are some useful contact details in the central panel below.

10. INVOLVE THE AUTHORITIES

If the nature of any online bullying makes you suspect that your child is genuinely in imminent physical danger – or if there are any signs whatsoever of explicit images being shared as part of the bullying – then you should gather any relevant screenshots as evidence and report the incidents to your local police force.
